Certificate in Understanding Behaviour that Challenges

Level 2 ⋮ 153 TQT ⋮ 130 GLH

In an individual's personal or work life they may encounter behaviour that they find hard to understand and difficult to 'manage'. This course gives learners an insight into behaviour that challenges and how to respond to these situations in the most appropriate and supportive way. Learners will examine what behaviour that challenges means, why it may occur and how to promote positive behaviour. They will learn about the importance of effective communication and the vital role of reflection following episodes of behaviour that challenges. Learners will also explore the support available to maintain their own well-being.

Behaviour that challenges others is almost always a form of expression (a way of telling us something) and an indicator of unmet needs. The 'challenge' is not the person. The challenge is to understand the triggers for and reasons behind their behaviour. This understanding will help care and education providers alike to develop the proactive strategies needed to reduce incidences of behaviour that challenges in the future.

Who's it for?

This qualification would be particularly useful to those who work in an educational setting or within health and social care. More generally, it is also suitable for individuals who wish to learn more about how to respond to incidences of behaviour that they may find challenging.

What are the benefits of doing this course?

As well as attaining a nationally recognised qualification upon completion, candidates will gain a thorough understanding of the common causes and triggers of behaviour that challenges. Candidates will also learn about effective communication skills and de-escalation techniques. Knowing how to anticipate behaviour that others may find challenging and how to respond to these situations appropriately can help to create a more harmonious living or working environment.

The course also provides employers with a structured training programme that will meet the training needs of their employees, giving peace of mind that staff are equipped with the knowledge they need to successfully manage behaviour that challenges.

A benefit of using Hallmark's flexible learning resources is that learners can complete the course at times and locations convenient to them.
